

Abstract

A method and a device for signaling several items of information relevant for operating a motor vehicle are provided, which are registered by the driver of the vehicle in a particularly reliable manner, and which do not distract the driver from the traffic. To this end, different 5 items of information are represented by unambiguous haptic signals, particularly having a maximum, at different positions of a control element (~~1~~) of the vehicle, particularly an accelerator pedal.